Participate in shaping the future of Business Central

Want to shape the future of Microsoft Dynamics 365 Business Central?

Connecting with customers, listening to, and reacting to feedback is essential for Microsoft to keep Dynamics 365 Business Central a valued solution for your everyday work tasks. That is why actively soliciting feedback from users around the world is an integral part of the continued development of the product.

In the Business Central team, we carry out focused research as a part of the development process. This research includes online interviews and testing of new or existing features either in-product or via prototypes.
